"NOT SEEKING DESTRUCTION"

Gov. Wilson Says In Speech of Acceptance

REVIVE MERCHANT MARINE

Senator-Elect Ollie James Gives Official Notice to Democratic Nominee—Governor Accepts by Speech Full of Stinging Sentences—Working People of America Are the Backbone of the Nation

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 8.—Governor Wilson was officially notified of his nomination by United States States Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky, the permanent chairman of the Baltimore convention.

Mr. James' speech was a review of political conditions of today. He referred to the fact that there were no fraud charges at the Baltimore convention and no "disgruntled members of the party."

Representative James predicted the Democratic party would be triumphant, and criticized the Republicans for "allying themselves with the trusts." He told Governor Wilson that his rivals for the nomination took their defeat like "seasoned soldiers."

Though the governor spoke in acceptance theoretically to the fifty-two members of the committee, representing every state and territory in the union, the speech, sounding the depths of his political philosophy, was heard by a great throng.

Culled from a lengthy address of acceptance, some of Governor Wilson's more striking sentences are as follows:

We stand in the presence of an awakened nation, impatient of partisan make-believes.

The forces of the nation are asserting themselves against every form of special privilege and private control.

We denounce the Payne-Aldrich tariff act as the most conspicuous example ever afforded of special favors and monopolistic advantages. We favor their reconsideration from top to bottom in an entirely different spirit.

There should be an immediate revision, and it should be downward, unhesitatingly and steadily downward.

The high cost of living is arranged by private understanding.

Men of the same interests have drawn together, have united their enterprises and have formed trusts; and trusts can control prices.

The trusts do not belong to the period of infant industries. They belong to a very recent and very sophisticated age, when men knew what they wanted and how to get it by the favor of the government.

The next chapter will set us free again. It will be a chapter of readjustment, not of pain and rough disturbance.

What we are seeking is not destruction of any kind, nor the disruption of any sound or honest thing, but merely the rule of right and of the common advantage.

The working people of America are the backbone of the nation. There can be nothing wholesome unless their life is wholesome; there can be no contentment unless they are contented.

In the reform of our banking and currency laws, we ought to consult very many persons besides the bankers. No mere bankers' plan will meet the requirements. It should be a merchants' and farmers' plan as well.

We hold the Philippine islands in trust for the people who live in them. I do not know of any greater question than that of conservation.

Federal government must build and maintain the levees of the Mississippi river.

Our domestic markets no longer suffice. We need foreign markets. The tariff was once a bulwark; now it is a dam.

Ridiculous to build the Panama canal and then have no ships to send through it.

Duty of government to share in promoting agricultural, industrial, vocational education.

We represent the desire to set up an untangled government, a government that cannot be used for private purposes.

GRAY CONFESSES

That He Murdered Naomi Mitchell at North Carmel

Bangor, Me., Aug. 7.—A confession that he murdered Naomi E. Mitchell at North Carmel, Me., on the night of July 24, was made to Sheriff P. H. White in the presence of witnesses by J. Sherman Gray, who earlier in the day was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of murder.

Gray wants to be confined in an insane asylum, and said that he desires to tell the whole truth and get as light a sentence as possible.

He concluded his statement by saying: "I killed Naomi Mitchell by cutting her throat with a jackknife on the night of July 24."

REPUBLICANS LOSE

In Kansas Primary Contests With Progressive Party

Topeka, Aug. 8.—Late returns settled the fight between the Progressives and Republicans of Kansas, at the primaries. The Progressives won the presidential electors and nearly all congressmen.

Governor W. R. Stubbs, a Roosevelt man, by aid of the country districts, defeats Senator Curtis, a supporter of Taft, by a good majority.

WOULD UNCOVER HANFORD'S BACKERS

Representative Berger Urges Attorney General to Act

Washington, Aug. 8.—Attorney General Wickens and Representative Victor Berger have held a conference relative to the proposed prosecutions of the men who were said to have had unlawful dealing with Judge Hanford, whose resignation President Taft has just accepted. Berger urged the attorney general to proceed against a number of prominent business men and politicians of Seattle, who are alleged to have been in partnership with Hanford in many enterprises and litigations. The Socialist congressman claims that Hanford was forced to resign in order to protect the "men higher up."

The report of the sub-committee of the committee on judiciary as well as evidence by Berger show that a group of men have for years associated with Hanford for their common advantage. It is asserted that decisions affecting liberty and property were bought and sold and Berger believes that the men who have profited by the sudden ending of the investigation ought to be called to account by the department of justice. It is Berger's opinion that a federal grand jury in Seattle will soon begin an investigation of this latest development of the Hanford case.

COLONEL'S SPEAKING TOUR

Will Appear in Most of the New England States

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Colonel Roosevelt left today for Oyster Bay and will remain there for a few days before beginning his campaign.

Colonel Roosevelt's first engagement is to speak in Rhode Island Aug. 16. The following day he will address a mass meeting of New England Progressives at Point of Pines, near Boston. On Aug. 22 he will attend the jubilee of Fr. Curran, a Catholic clergyman of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who is known for his work among the coal miners. On Aug. 26 the colonel will go to Vermont. After a few days at home he will go to St. Paul to speak at the Minnesota state fair on Sept. 6, and then will return to take the stump in Connecticut.

Upon his return from Connecticut, Colonel Roosevelt will begin his long trips. He probably will leave early in October on a month's trip which will take him through the Pacific coast states and back through the south.

Colonel Roosevelt intends to get into at least forty states, and he said that with only about sixty working days for his campaign he would be able to make only one speech in most states. His campaign will be so long and arduous, he said, that he will speak only in the larger cities, and it possible will make no rear platform speeches from his train.

STRIKERS WIN FINAL VICTORY

State Board Decides In Favor of "L" Union Men

RESTORED WITH OLD RATINGS

Return to Employ of Boston Elevated by Aug. 19—Must Each Notify the Road of Their Intention by Aug. 16—Taken Back in Order of Their Seniority, Displacing "Loyalists" Who Had Jumped Them

Boston, Aug. 7.—The striking Elevated carmen are to return to work on or before Aug. 19 at their former ratings.

This was the decision of the state board of conciliation and arbitration rendered in an unanimous report made public at 7 o'clock last evening.

According to signed agreements, both the Elevated company and union carmen are to abide by the result.

The victory for the carmen is sweeping. The men discharged for "unsatisfactory service" between May 14 and June 7 are to be taken back with those who went on strike.

Under the terms of the final agreement the Elevated company is to notify the union officers at the different division quarters the men they want to return to work. The men are requested to be on hand each day to await the call for duty. They will be taken back in order of their seniority of service. The men who wish to return must give notice to the company before Aug. 16. They are all to be reinstated by Aug. 19.

This is the report of the state board of conciliation and arbitration in full: "In the matter of the controversy between the Boston Elevated Railway company and the Carmen's union of Boston and its vicinity."

"The strike which has existed between the Boston Elevated Railway company and certain of its employees was investigated by the state board of conciliation and arbitration and certain findings of fact were made, and recommendations were submitted as follows:

"The existing controversy seriously affects the public and the board recommends to the parties that in conference they endeavor by agreement to accomplish an amicable settlement which shall be alike just to the company and its employees and the public which it is its duty to serve."

"Subsequent to these recommendations the parties met in conference and entered into an agreement for the termination of the controversy which contained the following provision:

"Third: The state board of conciliation and arbitration to determine what men shall be taken back by the company and the time within which, and the rating at which, they shall be taken back, their decision to be final."

This means that the loyalists who remained faithful to the Elevated company will be compelled to give up their higher ratings which came to them as a result of the strike.

TO SAVE QUADRUPLETS

Nurses Putting Forth Every Effort to Keep Them Alive

To Save Lives of First Little Seven Months Quadruplets

Boston, Aug. 8.—Relays of nurses are watching constantly day and night in front of the incubator where lie the four baby girls born to Mrs. Thomas H. Seely at the Dorchester Cottage hospital.

Never before have seven-month quadruplets been known to live. The doctors and nurses have set about to save the lives of these tiny visitors. They will use every method known to medical science.

The babies have lain side by side on tiny beds in the incubator ever since they were born. They will have to lie there for four months to come—if they live.

Odds Favor Wilson

New York, Aug. 8.—Betting on the election is on in earnest. Wilson is a 2 to 1 favorite. A heavy bet was recorded in the financial district on the governor at these odds against the field. President Taft rules last in the betting that has so far been reported. Odds of 5 to 4 and 10 to 7 are given that Roosevelt will beat Taft.

Date of Mikado's Funeral

Tokyo, Aug. 7.—The funeral arrangements for the late Emperor Mutsuhito have been completed. The date of the funeral ceremony at Tokyo has been fixed for Sept. 13 and the interment is to take place at Momoyama on Sept. 14.

PROGRESSIVE RUMORS

Name Several Who May Seek Gubernatorial Honors

Boston, Aug. 5.—Another man to be added to the list of those talked of for the gubernatorial nomination on the Progressive ticket is Thomas L. Jilgan of Springfield, who once hitched his wagon to the Independence League star. That list includes the names of George Fred Williams, Thomas W. Lawson, Louis D. Brandeis, Frederick Fosdick and others.

Though the Progressives of the state are already suggesting candidates by means of the postal card canvass, nothing in this connection will be given out at headquarters until after the Chicago convention.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE TICKET

Candidates Indorsed by the State Committee

Boston, Aug. 7.—The makeup of the state ticket was decided upon before Governor Foss left to be present at the notification ceremonies tendered Governor Wilson, Democratic presidential nominee.

Governor Foss and Chairman Thomas P. Riles of the state committee are responsible for the makeup of the state ticket. It appears, up to date, that there will be no contests, so the Democratic state committee will circulate the nomination papers of the candidates.

The Democratic state ticket will be as follows:

For governor—Eugene N. Foss or Joseph C. Pelletier.

For lieutenant governor—David I. Walsh.

For secretary of state—Frank J. Donahue.

For treasurer—Joseph L. St. Coeur.

For auditor—Hon. James T. Carsons.

For attorney general—George W. Anderson.

BIG BULL MOOSE IS ROOSEVELT

Nominated as Anticipated
by Wild Acclamation

AS WAS GOV. H. W. JOHNSON

Across the Continent Ticket—Briefest Speeches of Acceptance on Record—Prendergast Nominates Roosevelt as "The Man Courageous"—Planks From Which the Progressive Platform is Built

Chicago, Aug. 8.—For president, Theodore Roosevelt.
For vice president, Hiram W. Johnson.

Roosevelt and Johnson—this is the national ticket of the Progressive party.

The platform on which they will stand is hewn from the doctrines enunciated in the colonel's "confession of faith."

Both candidates were nominated by acclamation at the Coliseum early last evening. While the delegates shouted in wild jubilation, varying the yells and shrieks by singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the nominees made a triumphal entry into the hall.

In brief speeches they accepted the nominations—a new departure in national conventions—after which the delegates sang the "Doxology" in thundering chant and after listening to a benediction adjourned sine die at 7:24 p. m.

Mr. Prendergast, who placed Colonel Roosevelt's name in nomination, spoke of the colonel as "the man courageous" of American politics and declared him to be a national asset.

Among others seconding the colonel's nomination were: Miss Jane Addams of Illinois, Judge Lindsey of Colorado, General H. C. King of New York, Union veteran, and Colonel T. P. Lloyd, a Confederate veteran, General McDowell, Tennessee commander of the Confederate Veterans; former Governor Garvin of Rhode Island.

When it came time to pick Roosevelt's team mate the governor of California was nominated by John M. Parker, a New Orleans Democrat, who had been considered for the place, and seconded by Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, whose friends had worked to land him for the second place.

F. R. Gleed, a negro delegate of New York, was among the many to second the nomination of Governor Johnson.

As Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Johnson took their places side by side on the platform a demonstration broke loose. The delegates leaped to their chairs and cheered. Colonel Roosevelt waved his hand to the crowd, but Johnson stood, evidently a trifle ill at ease.

"I come forward," said the colonel, "to thank you from my heart for the honor you have conferred upon me and to say that of course I accept. I have been president, I have seen and know much of life, and I hold it by far the greatest honor and the greatest opportunity that has ever come to me to be called by you for the time being to the leadership of this great movement for the common people."

"I thank the convention for my running mate."

The colonel was roundly cheered as he eulogized Johnson.

"We have nominated a proper man for the vice presidency," he said. "We have nominated a man fit at the moment to be President of the United States."

When the cheers that greeted the close of Roosevelt's speech subsided, Beveridge introduced Johnson.

"It is with the greatest solemnity," he began, "that I come here to tell you that I enlisted for the war."

A cheer interrupted him. He pledged himself to aid Roosevelt in the "fight for the common good," and concluded:

"I had rather go down to defeat with Theodore Roosevelt than to victory with any other presidential candidate."

When Johnson finished, Beveridge announced that the convention would end its session by singing the Doxology and by listening to benediction by Rev. James Goodman.

The delegates, standing in their places, joined in the chanting of the old Puritan hymn.

The rhythmic chant rose in a great volume from the thousands in the hall. As it died away Rev. Goodman stepped forward and invoked the divine blessing.

When Colonel Theodore Roosevelt got up and started to tell the crowd about Armageddon and the battle of the Lord, he was talking not a crowd of old political rounders, but to a clean-faced bunch of house fathers and young fellows who knew that they had to report to their mothers when they got back home.

The colonel knew perfectly well what kind of a crowd he was talking to, and he was just about as unofficial and offish as a man could be.

When he came upon the platform he had the air of a man who knew that he was going to talk to average representative citizens from Casco bay to the Golden Gate.

Meanwhile about 500 delegates were madly cheering Mrs. Roosevelt, who sat over in that box which, in June, was given over to the millionaires' wives headed by the wife of John Hays Hammond, but which this time is appropriated by a lot of hard working women with shirt waists.

The colonel did not own the convention so much as people thought he did. It was a convention of sincere and convinced enthusiasts. They were for Roosevelt because he was the man who seemed to embody their ideal, but if they had suspected him of being a self-seeker or "four-flusher" they would have turned him down in a moment. It was not at all like one of Mr. Hearst's Independence League conventions in New York, although a personally-conducted convention of Roosevelt's.

These men were decidedly religious. If you started to sing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," you could get more of an answer from this crowd than you could if you started with a "turkey trot" in the Democratic convention. Everybody's Doin' It" went in Baltimore and it went in Chicago at the time Taft was nominated, but if you wanted to get a response from the Progressives you had to sing "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

The grim and almost religious atmosphere which characterized the crowd was manifest especially in the hour or so before Chairman Beveridge called it to order. It was due to meet at 12 o'clock, but the colonel was not ready. So the outfit put in its time by singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Chicago, Aug. 8.—The following is the gist of the platform adopted by the Progressive party:

The conscience of the people in a time of grave national problems has called into being a new party, born of the nation's awakened sense of justice.

We of the Progressive party here dedicate ourselves to the fulfillment of the duty laid upon us by our fathers to maintain that government of the people by the people and for the people whose foundations they laid.

This declaration is our covenant with the people, and we hereby bind the party and its candidates in state and nation to the pledges made herein.

Direct primaries for state and federal offices.

Short ballot and direct election of United States senators.

Easy method of amending constitution.

Equal suffrage.

Limit and publicity of campaign expenses.

Restrict power of courts, giving people authority to determine fundamental questions of public policy.

Prohibits injunctions in labor disputes.

Prevention of industrial accidents, occupational diseases and fixing minimum safety and health standards.

Abolition of convict contract system.

The test of true prosperity shall be the benefits conferred thereby on all the citizens, and that to individuals or classes, and that the test of corporate efficiency shall be the ability better to serve the public; that those who prohibit control of business justify that profit and control by sharing with the public the fruits thereof.

Federal commission to supervise industrial corporations doing interstate commerce.

Prohibits child labor.

Minimum wage for women and eight-hour day.

Country life commission.

Immediate action to deal with high cost of living.

A patent law that will prevent monopolies.

Abolition of commerce court.

Panama canal to be so operated as to insure free competition with transatlantic railroads and denies use of canal to American railroad controlled ships.

Tariff revision and a scientific tariff commission.

Repeal of Canadian reciprocity act.

Inheritance and income tax.

Two battleships a year.

For better working conditions and creation of department of labor.

Initiative, referendum and recall.

Strengthening Sherman law to insure competition in business and prevent present unfair trade practices.

Co-operation with manufacturers and producers in extending foreign commerce.

Good roads, national highways, extension of rural free delivery and parcels post.

Conservation of natural resources.

Reasonable compensation for public water rights.

Development of Alaska and federal acquisition of its transportation facilities.

Resign From Republican Club

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 8.—Judge John Hildreth of Holyoke has written his letter of resignation as a member of the state Republican committee.

A. A. Coburn, who for four years was president of the Holyoke Republican club, has sent a letter to President Fred Childs of the club resigning his membership. They will both join the Progressives.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH.

Descendants of the Germans Who Came to This Country in 1682.

To most Americans the word "Dutch" means German. The Dutch are Hollanders from the Netherlands. New York was first settled by the Dutch from Holland.

The first Germans came to this country in 1682 and settled at Germantown. It is estimated that the Germans and their descendants in Pennsylvania numbered 100,000 at the time of our revolution. The descendants of these are called the Pennsylvania Germans or Dutch. The word Dutch is a corruption of Deutsch, meaning German.

The early Germans were followers of Menno Simons, known as Mennonites. They were persecuted in their own country on account of their religious belief and when Penn offered religious liberty it was gladly accepted by them. The persecuted Germans came largely from the Rhenish palatinate, Wurtemberg, from the lower Rhine, Alsace, Saxony and Switzerland.

The southeastern counties of Pennsylvania, such as Lancaster, York, Berks and Lebanon, were chosen for settlement. These settlers spoke a variety of dialects, and, owing to segregation in religious communities, they clung to their mother tongue. English words have since crept in and as a result we have the somewhat picturesque language known as the "Pennsylvania Dutch." Their religious belief and their common interest have preserved this class with singular purity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

OLD TALLY STICKS.

Their Use in England Was Abolished With Disastrous Results.

In the museum attached to the standards department of the board of trade, in Old Palace yard, London, a box containing a number of the old exchequer tally sticks, upon which, until an early period in the last century, it was the custom to keep the national accounts.

The tallies were notched sticks of seasoned willow or hazel, the notch on the edge representing the particular amount—the smallest for pence, a larger notch for shillings and the largest for pounds.

The system, which was first introduced by the Normans in the year 1066, was not finally abolished until the reign of William IV., and then only with disastrous results. An order was promulgated that the accumulated tallies, amounting to many thousands, were to be destroyed, and they were accordingly burned in one of the stoves in the house of lords. By some means or other the stove became choked, the paneling caught fire, and in the end the whole of the palace of Westminster, with the exception of Westminster hall, was destroyed.

Some years ago a number of these old tally sticks were discovered in Martin's bank, in Lombard street—New York Tribune.

Puzzles From the Greek.

If two are a few, why not three; if three, why not four, and by a gradually advancing increment of number why not 10,000, or any other number? Or, again, if the loss of a single hair does not make a man bald, why should the loss of two, of three, and so on, and inferentially the loss of all?

If, then, no addition or subtraction of a unit can transform a small number of wheat grains into a heap or a full head of hair into a bald head, how is it possible that either transition should ever be accomplished?

Take a grain of millet out of a bushel and let it fall on the ground, and it makes no noise. Take every grain in succession of 10,000, let the same happen, and no sound is heard. Then collect all the grains back into the bushel and pour it out, and the result is a great noise. How, asks Zeno, can 10,000 noiseless processes make one full of noise?

Honors at College.

"What was your son's social standing in college?"

"Oh, very fair. Why, he almost got into the Glee and Squeak society!"

"Indeed! How was that?"

"Why, you know they always hit them on the back as a sign they have been selected, and George was hit on the back with such force that it knocked him down."

"Mercy!"

"Yes, indeed. He thought of course he had been chosen, but he found out afterward it was the class bully who hit him because he didn't like the set of his collar. But even that's a great honor."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The American Collector.

"You can assure me that this old master is genuine?"

"Oh, yes, my very dear sir. The proof is perfect. Why, I can point out to you the very street in which the poor old master lived."

"And you are sure he was an old master?"

"Sure! Why, my very dear sir, he was more than ninety when he died."

"I'll take it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

She Hated It—Sure.

"I hate flattery," she said.
"Of course you do," he replied. "Every pretty girl does."

Then she drew a long, deep sigh and permitted him to press her cheek against his own.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Two Views of It.

Parson—Do you take this woman for better or for worse? Bridgroom—Well, I can't exactly say. Her people think it's for better, but mine think it's for worse.—Life.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Essex:

Respectfully libels and represents Meda Frances Dudley of Salem in said county, that she was lawfully married to William Foster Dudley now of parts unknown at Methuen on the second day of April A.D. 1904, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said William F. Dudley lived together as husband and wife in said county, monowith, to wit, at Methuen and Andover, that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations, but the said William Foster Dudley being wholly regardless of the same, at Methuen on the sixteenth day of August, 1907, without just cause wilfully and utterly deserted and abandoned your libellant, which desertion has continued from such time to the date hereof, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel. That the said William Foster Dudley, being of sufficient ability so to do, grossly wrongfully and cruelly refused and neglects to provide suitable maintenance and support for your libellant, and for their infant children.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said William Foster Dudley; and your libellant represents that there has been born of said marriage, a son, William Francis, a daughter, Alice, and a son Teddy, now aged eight, six and five years respectively and prays the care and custody of said minor children be decreed to your libellant; that your libellant may be allowed to resume her maiden name; that the libellee may be decreed to pay such alimony to your libellant as to this Honorable Court may seem just and reasonable.

Dated this thirtieth day of July A.D. 1912.

MEDA FRANCES DUDLEY.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts

ESSEX, SS.

SUPERIOR COURT, July 30, 1912.

Upon the foregoing libel, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said William Foster Dudley by causing an attested copy of her said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in the Andover Townsman a newspaper printed in Andover in the county of Essex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court, at Salem, within the county of Essex, on the first Monday of September next, and by mailing, forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at his last known place of residence, an attested copy of said libel and order thereon; that he may appear at said Salem within six months from said first Monday of September and show cause, if any he has, why his prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Attest,

E. B. GEORGE, Clerk

The foregoing is a true copy of said libel and of the order thereon.

Attest,

Serious Times Politically

The addresses of President Taft and presidential candidate Wilson are notable contributions to the political history of the country. The address of ex-President Roosevelt is also a notable contribution but of an entirely different character from that of his competitors in the presidential race now under way. It behooves the American people whether voters or not, to read very carefully these three addresses, and while there will be very many who will agree with much that is said by ex-President Roosevelt in his long jump into the realms of socialism and revolution, we cannot help feeling that a careful weighing of the statements made and the arguments presented will lead a majority of the people of this country to still adhere to sanity and a reasonable conservatism in considering and passing upon political questions.

President Taft's chief demand in accepting the nomination is for constitutional government. Governor Wilson stands on almost exactly the same ground, and aside from his insistence that there shall be an immediate revision of the tariff, there is very little difference between these two men in their declaration of principles. It would appear therefore that much of the conflict for the next three months will center around the tariff issue and a discussion of protection and free trade.

It is to be hoped that the public will not be carried away too easily by the insistence that a less protection of American manufactured product will reduce to any great extent the cost of living, or in itself is even possible under the present demands of the United States for large revenues with which to carry on the government. It is very easy for the extremists to insist that other forms for revenue can be discovered and easily put into law, but it is a long process through which the nation must pass before it can give up its present protective policy for such a radical change as is suggested in the Democratic platform and as is openly advocated by many Democratic leaders. This is entirely aside from the merits of the protective policy itself, merits which are many in number and of vital importance to the human interest side of the American people.

The issue between Wilson and Taft on the one hand, and Roosevelt on the other, is a vastly different one from the issue clearly raised between Wilson and Taft. The Republican and Democratic candidates both stand for sane government. It is a serious thing to say, but there is much evidence that the candidate of the third term party stands for anything but sane government. An interesting conversation with a strong supporter of Roosevelt has led the writer to be very much interested in the viewpoint of many men who are honest in their beliefs that the only salvation of the country comes through the election of Theodore Roosevelt at the present time. It is indeed a serious situation if this is true. And it is even more serious if the honest, clear-headed men who make up a strong minority of those who are shouting the loudest for the chief Bull Moose, are ultimately to find themselves sadly misled, as many of us believe they are, in yielding blindly in their fanatical following of this fanatical leader.

Whatever the result, either in the position of the candidates that may be marked by the closing of the contest, or in the particular success of any one of the three candidates, we believe the coming campaign will be in many respects the most memorable campaign since the formation of the Republican party. It behooves the average man to take his politics seriously and not to fly off to the beckoning of every little breeze that blows out of the many contrary winds and currents bound to arise almost daily between now and November 5.

Before ME

Editor of the Townsman.

Your old-time friend, and fellow pen-pusher, appears much interested in the Ten Commandments. Are you sufficiently in his counsels to tell us why he did not begin his series of homilies with the First, rather than the Seventh?

EXPOSITOR

We are obliged to advise our inquirer that there is but one Commandment that really dominates the distinguished citizen whom he refers to as our "fellow pen-pusher," who frequently quotes the Seventh, but who does it for no other purpose than to exaggerate the application of the First to himself. The frenzied adulations of the mass of people gathered in the Chicago convention during the present week indicate that they too have felt that the real present day application of either one or all of the Ten Commandments must be made entirely in relation to the idol whom they have worshipped so blindly.

There is just enough of genuine merit (as there always is with such men) in the doctrines he is preaching, and in the measures he is advocating, to give him ground for the agitation which he is making, and which so many of the voters are pretty sure to follow during the present campaign. Few people stop to consider his own record in promoting the very things he is now proclaiming so loudly, but yield themselves blindly and entirely to the loud noise which he is making.

Massachusetts has had examples of just this sort of campaign in three notable city elections; that in Lawrence, in which Billy White was elected, that in Salem, where Arthur Howard was elected, and that in Lowell, where Policeman Brown was elected; but very evidently the local application has but very little effect on the national disease.

No crowd of religious fanatics ever went to greater lengths than have the people who made up the Chicago convention during the present week. Perhaps their views are sound; perhaps their aims are wise. If so their actions are justified, but no man who has confidence in the foundations of this government, which have withstood this sort of onslaught during 130 years, will believe that we are yet in that position where any individual may stand on a public platform and proclaim that every man who disagrees with him is animated by impulses and convictions which prove him to be a liar, a thief and a breaker of every one of the Commandments.

Jas. H. Horsfall is said to be a wealthy man of Lowell, who uses an automobile more or less. Apparently he uses it more, from the fact that he has himself killed a woman, and his chauffeur has now killed a small boy. We don't care whether Mr. Horsfall has the least responsibility or not for the killing of the boy. He has already lost his license for handling his automobile personally in such a way as to be a menace, and has been obliged to engage a chauffeur in order that he might continue to use an automobile. The next step for the Highway Commissioners is to take away Mr. Horsfall's license to use an automobile in any way, shape or manner, either by himself or by a chauffeur in his employ.

Another automobilist has been arrested during the past week for knocking down lamp-posts, bumping into trees, and smashing into a few other automobiles on the street in such a way as to cause the judge who heard the case to query as to how in the world he got a license to operate an automobile anyway. Here again is an excellent opportunity for the Highway Commission to do a public service not only in taking away licenses, but in exercising care in granting licenses to men who know absolutely nothing about machinery, the rules of the road, or any of the other necessary things required to make a man sufficiently skilled to properly pilot an automobile on the street. Along these lines are some of the ways in which improvement may be made in controlling the real evils which exist in connection with the operation of automobiles.

As to Our Athletes

If the Americans at Stockholm had finished in third or fourth place, or even the second, we wonder if the American press would have given to explanation of the defeat or criticism of the winners such space as some European papers have given. We hope not, for to be a good loser is part of the game.

The charge of "professionalism" laid by some abroad against the Americans is probably true. History does not tell for how many generations the sturdy Thorpe has been training all his muscles to do his will. The Hawaiian was born on the crest of a wave, and so has no credit for outswimming the world. Strobino, the machinist, of course was on the jump in his daily toil, and thus qualified for the marathon. And the Adams brothers were so eager to meet other young fellows with springy legs that they lost their jobs rather than lose the chance to go.

Probably we take our games seriously, but we get piles of fun that way. Let the traveler watch the boys on any vacant lot, and he will see the training that gives suppleness to our youth and endurance to our men. Baseball is a great qualifier for business or for stunts, so young America believes, and it's workable creed. Rather a call to reflection that Olympic outcome. Two nations, whose prided militarism is supposed to create perfect physical manhood, made a poor showing against two other nations that admire a minimum standing army.

Editorial Cinders

There will be a great many people in Andover, high and low, rich and poor, who have come into contact with the retiring district nurse, who is now Mrs. Edwin T. Brewster, who will regret deeply the loss that comes to the town through her resignation. She has been a genuine ministrator to many families and individuals, carrying with her not alone the actual service she rendered, and medicines she gave, but much more than that, a sweetness and light in her life which has endeared her to the home and the sickbed to an extraordinary degree. The universal wishes of her friends, who are legion, will be for many years of happiness in her new relationship.

A gentleman asks the writer if he wasn't stating it pretty strongly when he recently suggested that Andover's business would suffer from offensive methods in automobile law-enforcing. On the contrary, more emphasis could very properly be placed upon this statement, for Andover's biggest business is very directly interested in automobiles. The big new factory for Tyer Rubber Co. is to be devoted almost exclusively to auto tire making. Let the autoists become prejudiced against Andover, and Andover-made tires would have a harder road to travel than the average Andover highway.

The New District Nurse

The past two weeks have brought about a change in what has come to be a most vital feature in Andover's life, the office of the district nurse, through the resignation of the former incumbent and the appointment of her successor.

With the resignation of Miss Dodge, the townspeople have lost an efficient nurse, a kindly adviser, and a sympathetic friend. Her work of three years' duration, while quiet and unassuming, and probably almost unnoticed by many of those whose days are filled with the healthful pursuit of business or pleasure, has grown and penetrated more and more deeply into the life of the town, until it now is very evident that to go back to the days when there was no district nurse would be a very impracticable and ill-advised step.

Miss Dodge has been especially successful in her work because of her unfailing sympathy and help always extended to those in sickness or trouble, because of her ungrudging devotion of time and strength to the needs of those about her, and because all who have come in contact with her have felt that in her they had a true friend.

Much as her resignation is regretted, both the public and those in charge of the District Nurse Fund feel that a most fitting successor has been found in Miss Lulu B. Abbott. An Andover girl, a graduate of the Andover schools, Miss Abbott, as has been identified with Andover interests, and it is peculiarly fitting that to her should be given the charge of continuing the work. Miss Abbott is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Abbott of Andover street, and is well and favorably known throughout the town. She is a graduate of the Homeopathic Hospital in Boston, and since her graduation has had considerable experience and success in private nursing. It is felt that in Miss Abbott's hands, the excellent work of the last four years will be continued and increased, so that it will merit and, it is earnestly hoped, will meet with the same hearty approbation and support that have been accorded it in the past.

Grangers at Canobie Lake

A very pleasant outing was enjoyed by the members of the State and Essex Pomona granges at Canobie Lake Park on Wednesday. Patrons were in attendance from Andover, Methuen, Haverhill, West Boxford, North Andover, Groveland, West Newbury, Newbury, Boxford, and Newburyport. Special cars were provided in several instances.

A special feature of the day's outing consisted of a baseball game played between the North Andover Grange and a picked team. A list of sports was also run off which were participated in by a large number of the patrons.

Among the Andover Grangers present were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Averill, Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Corliss, Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Moorar, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McGovern, George Carter, Miss Madeleine Hewes, Edward Boutwell, and Ralph Bailey.

Flower Show

The annual Flower Show will be held in the town hall on September 6 and 7, and all persons wishing to compete for prizes should send in their names to the secretary as early as possible.

Entries will positively close August 31.

All entries for the garden competition must be made to the secretary not later than August 20.

A list of the prizes may be had by application to Mr. Playdon, chairman, or any other member of the committee.

Wedding

BREWSTER-DODGE

The marriage of Miss Lillian E. Dodge and Edwin Tenney Brewster, both well-known residents of Andover, was quietly solemnized at Christ church last Sunday afternoon, August 4, at four o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederic Palmer, D.D. Mr. and Mrs. Brewster are now in Pequaket, N. H., where they will spend a few weeks before returning to Andover.

Ministers Gather at Northfield

At Northfield 200 ministers from all parts of the country, representing more than eight denominations, are daily listening to Rev. John A. Hutton of Glasgow, and Dr. A. T. Robertson, professor in the Baptist Seminary at Louisville, Ky. These men who are the pastors of thousands of parishioners form a very interesting audience when one considers the dynamic force represented. Theological students and grey-haired pastors, Methodists, Anglicans and Lutherans all mingle freely and listen to Mr. Hutton's masterful treatment of the lessons deduced from the history of the Christian Church during the first three centuries. Dr. Robertson's course on the Epistle of James is a new departure for Northfield. The study is being made directly from the Greek text in which language the leader is unexcelled as a teacher. Even those not acquainted with the Greek are attending the lectures.

But the ministers' conference forms only a small part of the work now going on at Northfield in this conference, which is the largest and most important of the year. Sunday the auditorium will be crowded with nearly 3000 listeners and the eight or ten other meetings include services for those from four to four score.

Summer School Exhibition

The work of the summer school is drawing to a close but two important features of it still remain to be carried out. The first of these is an exhibition of the work of the pupils which will take place on the Funchard school grounds on Thursday afternoon, August 15, at 3 o'clock sharp. No admission fee will be charged.

The exhibition will consist of folk-dancing and singing games, and the visitor will also have an opportunity to inspect the work which has been done by the children, namely, boats, swings, hammocks, Indian suits and moccasins, raffia work, etc. While some of the features will have had less preparation than others, still the whole promises to be of a very interesting nature and should afford an excellent afternoon's entertainment. With this in mind, a cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend.

Bring this program with you:

Flag Raising
Grand March
Towel Slap	(Game)
Shoemakers	(Dance)
Mountain March	(Norwegian)
Obstacle Race
1 See You	(Swedish Singing Game)
Virginia Reel	(Dance)
Kelley Race
Carrousel	(Swedish Singing Game)
Indian Dance
Farewell to Summer School	(Song)

The second feature of the summer school work which is of interest to both teachers and pupils is the eight days' camping-out, which will come from August 17 to 24. Foster's pond will be the scene of the outing and it is expected that about thirty children will participate in the fun which is being planned by Mr. and Mrs. Garrison who will be in charge. The children chosen for the trip will be the older members of the school who have maintained high rank in attendance, work and conduct during the season. The first four days will be devoted to the boys, and the second four to the girls. No part of the attendant expenses will fall upon the children; the outing is given them free of charge. Further announcements in regard to the trip will be given next week.

New Soccer League President

At a meeting of the Lawrence, Lowell and District Soccer Football league held on Sunday afternoon, the resignation of the president of the league, Alexander Anderson of this town, was accepted. Mr. Anderson withdrew from office owing to pressure of business. The newly elected president is William Raynor of Manchester United, and William Pangburn of the Lawrence club is the new vice-president.

The following are the opening games which will be played Saturday, September 7: Manchester United vs. Lawrence Olympics at Manchester; Clans vs. Methuen at Glen Forest; Andover vs. Bunting at Andover; Lawrence vs. Manchester Light Blues at Glen Essex.

There will be a special meeting of the league Sunday, August 18, to take action on the by-law in regard to officials being affiliated with some club. As it is now, they must be enrolled with a club. Treasurer John Haggas refuses to join a club and will resign if the law holds.

ANDOVER'S HEAVY TAX PAYERS

List of Taxes Levied on Corporations and Private Citizens of the Town.

With the announcement of the tax rate of $16.50 per $1,000 for the present year, comes the usual ingathering of taxes both large and small, from corporations and private citizens of the town. As in former years Andover's tax list contains the names of many heavy tax payers, the largest individual tax being that paid by William M. Wood, of $3475.25, and the largest corporation tax that of the Smith & Dove Company, amounting to $7120.58.

Former Andover Man Dies

Lieutenant Charles Henry Poor, for the past twenty years a resident of North Andover, but previous to that time a well-known citizen of Andover, died last Sunday afternoon after an illness of some duration. The deceased was eighty years of age last May.

Mr. Poor was a native of Methuen, where he was born May 25, 1832. He was the son of William and Hannah G. (White) Poor. His father was born in North Andover, and was a wheelwright by trade, moving with his family to Andover where he engaged in the carriage business when the son was but two years of age. The mother was a native of Bedford. Both came of good old New England stock. The Poores first settled in West Newbury and were one of the first families in the locality.

In Andover Mr. Poor grew up and attended the village schools and later entered Phillips Academy, where he studied two years under Principal Taylor. He never graduated, but when seventeen years of age secured work with C. B. Clark of this town as a bookbinder's apprentice. Clark moved his business to Boston and Mr. Poor went with him. When but an apprentice he bound the first fifty volumes of Uncle Tom's Cabin, written by Harriet Beecher Stowe in the Old Stone house, now a part of Phillips Inn. He worked at his trade as a bookbinder up to the time of the rebellion and for some years after. He also worked with his father in the carriage business in Andover.

His marriage to Miss Rebecca J. Spofford of North Andover was celebrated in 1858. The event took place at Manchester, N. H. They had three children, all of whom are now dead. Their oldest daughter, who became the wife of Rev. A. H. Arms, died at Warner, N. H., about sixteen years ago. There is a grandson, a student at Dartmouth college, who visited his grandparents often. Their only son died at the age of four, and their first child, a daughter, passed away at the age of two years. Lieutenant Poor enlisted for a period of three years in Captain Horace Holt's Andover second lieutenant. Mr. Poor was elected second lieutenant, but was mustered in as first lieutenant at Fort Warren.

He moved with his wife from Andover to North Andover twenty years ago. He is survived by his widow, Rebecca J., and one grandson, Harry Lyman Arms; also a niece, Mrs. John N. Cole of this town and a nephew, Rev. William G. Poor of Salem.

He was a member of Gen. Lawton post 146, G. A. R., and the Veteran Firemen's association of Boston. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock from the late home and the services were conducted by Rev. George E. Lovejoy of South Lawrence. Interment was in Ridgewood cemetery, North Andover.

Note from the Millers in India

Mr. and Mrs. Miller of the Pasumalai Training School in the Madura District, India, are so well known in Andover, and so much interest was taken in their visit last spring, that their friends here will be glad to read part of a letter dated July 10.

"We had a 'bon voyage,' and enjoyed all but a day or two on the sea. Had a splendid time in Japan, a short visit in China and the Strait Settlements, and found ourselves back at work in Pasumalai, just fourteen months to a day from time of leaving. It is hot—daily over 100°, and never below 80° at night. We are very busy unpacking, and settling, and opening school. Over 650 enrolled already, and many turned away for lack of room and funds. We have fully 100 boys who have to eat out of doors, because there is no room for them in the dining-room. We have seven classes who recite all their lessons in a dormitory. My Hindoo banker friend has promised to build us a hostel, and I am now making plans for same, working 'nights and Sundays' to do it."

"The books (from Mr. Draper's publications) came O. K. and we were so glad to get them. As to the septic tank fund, since the $865 was acknowledged in the Herald, I have received $50 from Prof. [unclear], and a like sum from the Y. P. S. C. E. of the South Church, leaving only $35 unpaid, but I am sure it will all come. Andover never fails us. Kindest regards to all the Andover friends from us both."

Majestic Theatre, Boston

The remarkably successful summer engagement of Miss Nance O'Neil with the Lindsay Morison Stock Company at the Majestic theatre, will come to a close next week with a magnificent production of the great play founded on Dickens' famous novel, "Oliver Twist." Of course Miss O'Neil will portray the powerful role of Nance, a character which she has often played. Even before she was first seen in Boston, she startled the western part of the country by the wonderful interpretation she gave the part, and it is surely going to prove a real treat to see her play it here next week.

The Morison Stock Company has been augmented and strengthened in order to furnish Miss O'Neil the best possible support. Howell Hansel will have the trying role of Fagan, and a superb scenic equipment has been prepared for staging the piece, and altogether no efforts or expense will be spared in making the production a fitting offering for the close of Miss O'Neil's memorable Boston engagement. It will probably prove the last opportunity Bostonians will ever have of seeing Miss O'Neil at popular prices. That this fact is appreciated is already clearly shown by the tremendous advance sale of tickets.

Jerseys 2, Royals 0

The Royals were defeated on Saturday afternoon in a close game played on the local grounds with the Jerseys of Lawrence. The final score was 2 to 0. The Jerseys scored their two runs in the first inning on a base on balls and two hits. The score:

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Vacations

The one day in seven vacation is an old, old vacation day. The now despised Westminster Catechism says that this seventh day is to be kept by a holy resting all that day even from such worldly occupations and recreations as are lawful on other days; but works of necessity and mercy are not to be neglected by this holy resting. The Jews had big vacation times, feasts and gatherings of the clans, at certain times during the year. Every seven years they had a big vacation, and every fifty years, what we would call today a big socialist vacation.

I am led to write this letter by reading the Townsman's Andover news, where everybody who is anyone is out of town. I trust that they will all enjoy their change and not forget to have the Townsman sent on to them. No one ever tells McDougall to go away and get a chance to learn and see something worth writing about. If he did what would the Townsman do? Many conceited people think that the world would not get on without them, and yet when they go away on a vacation, few people know that they are not in town and Andover is still on the map.

Having a hobby is a great blessing, whether it is the collecting of ferns and flowers, the study of bugs and grasshoppers, or the angling mania. Anything but the dance hall. I can see no earthly use for dancing on a warm, muggy evening, amongst a crowd of people living at the seashore who would just jump like idiots and have what they call a good time if your boat had swamped as you went out in the morning and left you at the bottom of the sea. Those who know how and where to use a kodak have a source of everlasting pleasure.

Whether you are spending your vacation at a farmer's house or at a big fashionable hotel, don't find fault with everything. A little compliment to the farmer's wife by saying that her bread and butter are excellent, may lead to her seeing that the coffee she gives her boarders is also excellent.

The beach is a continual source of enjoyment; children paddling in the wet sand and gathering shells in their little pails. The ebb and flow of the mighty ocean which the prophet says God holds in the hollow of His hand, the quaint fishermen, and the kindness of all the people you meet in the village will help to make your vacation pass pleasantly. If you think that because you are from the city you are nearer to heaven than these country folks you make a great mistake. It is not everyone who has the gift of finding out the pleasant things of life. Some folks seem to enjoy finding out the disagreeable things even during a vacation. The wild roses by the wayside which smell so sweet to some people are to some sweet to some people are to some a prickly nuisance.

The little old village church on Sunday morning is a quiet place to rest in for an hour to some vacation visitors, while to others flying nowhere at the rate of thirty miles an hour in an ugly automobile is far better than worshipping with those plain country folks whose ancestors long ago heard Him gladly.

On the twelfth of August the annual grouse shooting opens in Scotland. This little country attracts visitors from every other land chiefly for the grouse shooting, and millions of dollars are spent there in August and September. I would advise Mr. Roosevelt to leave politics to tricksters and New York grafters and enjoy the grouse shooting on the heathy hills of Scotland. Harvard Guild at Castle Mengies or Mr. Jordan of Boston at Drummond castle would feel honored by the presence of an ex-president of this great country, and if the colonel came back wearing a kilt he would win the election sure!

Let us all be thankful for our mercies, and if one for many reasons cannot get away from home, let us make a holiday of every day of the week and a real holy day and vacation day of Sunday.

On Sabbath days heaven's door stands open and blessings are sent down more plentiful than hope.

So sang George Herbert, the political, musical Episcopalian clergyman. Let us take up Herbert's song and enjoy the seventh day vacation.

The Red Cross Seals

Seventy-five million Red Cross Seals are now being printed for the holiday trade of these anti-tuberculosis stickers in 1912. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which in cooperation with the American Red Cross will conduct the sale, makes this announcement and states further that the outlook this year is bright for a larger sale than ever before.

The seal this year is said to be the best of its kind that the Red Cross has ever issued. The design is in three colors, red, green, and gray. A Santa Claus head in the three colors is shown in the center, surrounded by holly wreaths. In each corner is a small red cross. The seal bears the greeting, "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, American Red Cross, 1912."

The campaign for selling Red Cross Seals will be carried on in practically every state and territory in the United States, and even in Porto Rico, the Canal Zone, Hawaii and Philippine Islands. No less than 100,000 volunteer agents, including department, drug and other kinds of stores, motion picture theatres, individuals, and others, will be engaged in the work. Before the sale is completed, it is expected that at least 100,000,000 seals will have been printed and distributed, besides several million posters, display cards and other forms of advertising literature.

Last year over 32,000,000 seals were sold; in 1910, over 31,000,000; in 1909, about 23,000,000; and in 1908, the first year of the sale, only 13,500,000. In all, the sale in the four years has realized nearly $1,000,000 for the anti-tuberculosis campaign, since all of the money from this movement goes for the prevention of consumption. New York state sold the most seals in 1911, disposing of 6,350,768; Ohio came next with 3,500,480; Wisconsin third with 2,913,144; and Illinois fourth with 2,101,632. Texas showed the greatest percentage of gain, having increased its sale from 100,000 in 1910 to over 1,250,000 in 1911. Indiana showed the second greatest gain, with an increase from 683,750 in 1910 to 1,245,545.

Cost of Militia in Lawrence

An inkling of the enormous sum of money involved in the Lawrence strike is given by the fact that the total paid expenses up to the first of July that were incurred by the state militia during that period amounts to $171,826.31.

The pay of the militia men was of course the largest item; the next largest was for provisions furnished.

TRACING A CRIME.

Clever Detective Work by a University Professor.

THE KEEN EYES OF SCIENCE.

They Detected Blood Where There Were No Apparent Traces of It and Found Telltale Finger Marks That Pointed Direct to the Criminal.

Mme. Gulian was the wealthy widow of Jean Howard Gulian, former president of the Bank of France. Mme.
Gulian was seventy years old. One night she took a train at Fontainebleau for Paris. She had to herself a first class compartment. When the train arrived in Paris the porters found her compartment unoccupied. The door had been half torn from its hinges, there was a great pool of blood on the floor, and the police picked up from floor a handful of woman's hair, a torn piece of skirt and a first class railroad ticket from Fontainebleau to Paris.

A search along the railroad tracks resulted in the finding of Mme. Gulian's body beside the rails just outside Fontainebleau. It was greatly mangled. A little farther on was found the satchel she had carried. There were no rings on her fingers and no money in her pockets.

Mme. Gulian's relatives took the ground that she had been seized with a hemorrhage, to which she was subject, had tried to open the door of her compartment to summon aid or to get air; that she had in her paroxysm wrenched the door open and had fallen off the train, killing herself. The police were not satisfied with this explanation, particularly after Professor Reiss, the famous Lausanne university criminologist, had pointed out that the cut on the woman's satchel had been made by a knife and not by a sharp stone, as had been thought. This, however, was very little evidence, and Professor Reiss turned his attention to the compartment which Mme. Gulian had occupied. After he had finished his investigation he went to M. Lepine, prefect of Paris, and said to him:

"I am sure that Mme. Gulian was murdered, and I am equally sure that her murderer was a soldier. In the train compartment there were a towel and a stationary washstand. There were no stains upon the towel visible to the naked eye. Nevertheless we subjected every square inch to one of the most delicate tests for blood. We at last discovered an area which gave us the positive reaction for human blood.

"Upon this towel the murderer of Mme. Gulian wiped his bloody hands.
He knew that this would be evidence that the old woman did not meet her death by accident as he wished it believed, and so he washed the towel thoroughly, as he thought, and hung it up to dry.

"The detection then of this microscopic quantity of blood, which can be removed from a fabric only by acids, revealed to us that Mme. Gulian met death by the hands of a murderer.

"But I found another piece of evidence. There was, if you remember, a railroad ticket picked up on the floor. On its back was the imprint of a thumb. I compared it with that of Mme. Gulian; it was not hers. I threw its image up enormously on a lantern screen. I was then struck by the peculiar indentation of the little ridges on the inner side of the mark. Careful analysis of these marked ridges showed me that this was the thumb of a man who was actually serving as a soldier. The frequent ridges with ridges result in the pressure upon the ridges of the inner side of the thumb.
This causes a peculiar flattening, which is visible under a microscope when enlarged and is true of no other occupation except that of a soldier.

"As I reconstruct this crime this soldier managed to get into Mme. Gulian's compartment after the train had left Fontainebleau. He knew that she usually carried a number of jewels and a large sum of money. He tried to rob the old woman, and, meeting with unexpected resistance, fought with her in the compartment, killing her by beating her head against the register and then stripped the body of its jewels. He thoughtlessly wiped his hand upon the towel. He knew that this would be evidence of the presence of some one else in the compartment, so he washes the towel with soap and water, but does not know that we can discover blood even when it is only to the amount of one one-thousandth millimeters.

"He then wrenches the compartment door open and throws out the body.
He is pressed for time, rips open the satchel with his knife. Then, taking advantage of the slowing down of the train between Fontainebleau and Paris, he jumps from it and makes his escape."

As a result of Professor Reiss' analysis it was found that two soldiers, Gray and Michel, had followed Mme.
Gulian to the train on the night of her murder. They had hidden in her compartment, and when the train had started they murdered her, as Professor Reiss had indicated. The rest of the reconstruction was proved at the trial of these two men. They both confessed, were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

OUTWITTED A LION.

Clever Tactics of a Plucky and Ingenious African.

The little bushman of South Africa is not only small in size, but feeble in mind. Yet there is on record an encounter between a bushman and a lion which shows the man as cool in danger and fertile in resource.

This bushman, while a long way from his home, was met by a lion. The animal, assured that he had his victim completely in his power, began to sport and daily with him with a feline joco-sity which the poor little bushman failed to appreciate. The lion would appear at a point in the road and leap back again into the jungle, to reappear a little farther on.

The bushman, however, did not lose his presence of mind and presently hit upon a device whereby he might outwit his foe. This plan was suggested by the lion's own conduct.

Aware that the beast was ahead of him, the bushman dodged to the right, and, feeling pretty sure of the lion's whereabouts, resorted to the course of quietly watching his movements.

When the lion discovered that the man had suddenly disappeared from the path he was a good deal perplexed. He roared with mortification. Then he espied the bushman peeping at him over the grass.

The bushman at once changed his position, while the lion stood irresolute in the path, following with his eye the shifting black man. In another moment the little man rustled the reeds, vanished and showed himself at another point.

The great brute was first confused and then alarmed. It evidently began to dawn upon him that he had mistaken the position of matters and that he was the hunted party.

The bushman, who clearly recognized the situation, did not pause to permit the lion to recover his startled wits. He began to steal gradually toward the foe, who now, in a complete state of doubt and fear, turned tail and decamped, leaving the plucky and ingenious little bushman master of the situation.—Harper's.

GREAT HORN SPOONS.

The Ones That Are Made by Natives of Southern Alaska.

Horns of the Rocky mountain sheep, the buffalo and the mountain goat are made into dishes, ladles and spoons.
Some of these are carved, while others are both carved and inlaid with shell.
The decoration is sometimes geometric, but often a conventional representation of animal forms. This is especially true of the spoons of the Indians on the coast of northern British Columbia and southern Alaska. A few of these spoons are so large, so wonderfully artistic and so well made from the horn of the rare Rocky mountain sheep that even a moderately good one may appropriately be called a "great horn spoon." These are of a rich, golden yellow color. By far the greater number of horn spoons in this same region are made of the horn of the mountain goat, and these are black. A few have black handles of goat horn and golden bowls of sheep horn. All these handles are usually carved to represent traditional or mythical men, animals or monsters belonging to the lore of the individual family, just as among our people silver spoons bear the family monogram.—Detroit Free Press.

Church Tower Belfries.

Probably you have noticed that the openings in the belfry of a church are usually filled with a number of slanting boards, sometimes covered with lead. These are improperly called louvers, and many persons imagine that they are so arranged as to keep out the rain. The right name for these slats is abatsons, a word that means to throw down.

Their use is not to keep out the rain, because the wet does not hurt the bells at all and rain can beat in through the openings very easily. They are designed to turn the sound of the bells downward, so that persons on the ground can hear them better. In the middle ages some of these abatsons were beautifully carved and decorated.

The Game of Lacrosse.

The game known as lacrosse was originally played by the Canadian Indians, and from them adopted successively by the French and English settlers, and by them introduced to the United States. The object of the game is to drive the ball through goals situated at each end of the field.
The players are usually twelve on a side. In 1867 the Lacrosse Association of Canada was formed, and an Indian team visited Great Britain, creating great excitement. The game is one of real importance in the English sporting world.

end came Sunday afternoon.

TRAMPS OF THE SEA.

Their Work in Developing the Ocean Carrying Trade.

There are land tramps and sea tramps, but whereas the former lives by the labor of others, the world's business would be in great straits were the latter to be swept from the face of the ocean. While there have practically always been tramp ships since men have sailed the sea, it remained for the Yankee skippers to develop this phase of ocean carrying to its highest degree. Tramping on the ocean is only another name for trading, and many are the stories extant of Yankee skippers swapping beads, mirrors, calico, knives and other trifles for ivory in Africa, and for commodities equally as valuable in other lands.

The tramp steamship came into existence during the war between the states, and it is to this type of vessel that England primarily owes her su-premaccy on the sea, she having encouraged the building of tramps more than any other nation. In times of peace they add to her prosperity, and where they enjoy a subsidy, as they do in some instances, they are used as transports and other auxiliaries in times of war.

Next to England comes Norway as a nation which encourages sea tramps, and as her maritime laws are more elastic than those of Great Britain, many British tramps are sold to Norwegian owners, who make them pay after they have outlived their usefulness under the British flag.—Marine Journal.

Reek and Crook.

The rook appears to have become the bird whose name stands for swindlers in a distinctly unfair way. At first "rook" meant a dupe, then the verb
"to rook" came to mean to cheat, and out of this was evolved "rook," a cheater—a complete topsey turvy process. It is curious that the same thing has not happened to "gull." Here also the verb came from the substantive meaning a dupe, and as the gull strikes one as rather a knowing bird one might have expected the same evolution as in the case of the rook. It should be observed, however, that "gull," a dupe, did not refer specially to the sea gull, the word having formerly meant a young bird of any kind.
In Elizabethan English it signified a callow youngster who wished to be thought smart.—London Chronicle.

The Salamander.

In Andrews' "Anecdotes Ancient and Modern" (1789) one reads, "Should a glass house fire be kept up without extinguishing for a longer term than seven years there is no doubt but that a salamander would be generated in the embers." This probably accounts for the popular idea that a salamander lives in the fire, a fallacy so far removed from the truth that the curious lizardlike beast so called cannot endure even the heat of the sun, but skulks away under stones to avoid it.
It will never lose its reputation for fire eating, though, which lingers still in the beating utensil that is named after it.

Card Marks.

It is conjectured by some writers on the subject that the marks upon the cards designating the four kinds in a pack were originally symbolical and intended to signify the different classes of society. According to this supposition, the hearts represented the clergy, spades the nobility, some old packs of cards bearing a sword or lance head instead of a spade; clubs the serfs and diamonds the burghers or citizen classes.

Births

In Andover, Monday, August 5, 1912, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. James Ramsay, Jr.

In Andover Wednesday, August 7, 1912, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lillard.

Marriage

August 4, in Christ church by Rev. Frederic Palmer D.D., Edwin T. Brewster and Miss Lillian E. Dodge, both of Andover.

Mrs. Thomas Morrissey of Lynn has returned to her home after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Guthrie.

The annual outing of the employees of the Tyer Rubber Company took place last Saturday at Nantasket Beach. A special train, well filled with the happy picnicers, left the local station at 7.40 o'clock, and during the day the party enjoyed to the full the various attractions of the beach and of Paragon Park. The return home in the evening was also made by special train leaving Boston at 9.30. The committee in charge of the picnic consisted of Robert Loch-head, Fred Collins and Thomas Ewing.

The Rockingham Fair

Local farmers and fair enthusiasts are interested in the new venture called the Rockingham Fair, which is to take place at Rockingham, N. H., August 20, 21, 22, 23 and 24, New Hampshire's Old Home Week.

The company owning and operating the enterprise is headed by Hon. Eugene E. Reed of Manchester, N. H., for many years mayor of that city, while the board of directors includes many well known men among whom are John W. Linnell, Fred C. Garmon, Wesley A. Gove and A. Ingham Bicknell of Boston, Harry L. Pierce of Leominster, and William T. Richardson of Brookline.

The management has called together a strong staff to have charge of the agricultural fair, this department and the live stock exhibit being under the direction of Richard Patten of Plymouth, N. H., master of the New Hampshire State Grange. Dr. A. H. Fitch of Boston is manager of the dog show, T. E. L. Kemp of the dog show. An efficient staff of assistants are in charge of the various divisions of the agricultural department.

The $10,000 premium list offered by the Rockingham Fair compares favorably with those of the big fairs of the western states. It is not so extensive or complicated as some of the older fairs, but offers handsome prizes for the essentials of the New England farms. This is particularly true on the stock department, where only the seven principal breeds are classed, with prizes amounting to $587 on each breed. A noticeable feature of the premium list is the amount offered for ox and steer teams and in the working and fat oxen classes, prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $25 being offered for the ten-year ox teams. All together more than $5000 is to be given in the cattle classes alone, which ought to draw out a big and meritorious exhibition of the best cattle of the eastern states. The premium lists amount in all to more than $100,000 and the cash payments of all prizes on the last day of the fair is guaranteed.

Coming Lawrence Theatre Attractions

Plans are being made for the opening of the Opera House and the Colonial theatre in Lawrence the last of this month, and the commencement of what promises to be the best theatrical season which has been enjoyed in Lawrence for some years.

Julius Cahn, the New York manager and controller of several of the principal theatres in New England cities, is arranging for a list of attractions to come to Lawrence which is of considerable interest to theatre-goers.

Among the attractions promised for the Colonial theatre are the following: Frances Ring and an excellent company in the musical comedy success "The Yankee Girl," followed by "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," Boston's big hit last season; the Primrose and Dockstader Minstrels, Alice Lloyd in "Little Miss Fix-It," the Cohan & Harris success, "The Fortune Hunter," also their latest latest hit "Officer 666," Paul Marcel and his French company, Henry W. Savage's "The Million," Klaw & Erlanger's "Pink Lady," Weber & Field's "Alma Where Do You Live," Christie McDonald in "The Spring Maid," Creature and his band, Mutt and Jeff, Aborn's Opera Company and original production of "The Bohemian Girl," "The Greyhound," "Over Night," "The Common Law," "The Three Twins," "The Opera Company," "Little Boy Blue," "The Country Boy," "Neil O'Brien's Minstrels," "Bought and Paid For," David Belasco's "The Concert," Kitty Gordon in "The Enchantress," Frances Starr in "The Woman," "Get Rich Quick Wallingford," Raymond Hitchcock and a number of others.

A stock company will probably be provided for the Opera House. It is expected that the first offering of the season will be Liebler & Co.'s big success, "Alias Jimmy Valentine."

GIANT CATARACTS

Victoria Falls the Greatest of the Mighty Torrents

NIAGARA RANKS ONLY THIRD.

The Falls of the Iguassu River Hold Second Place, and These Three Are in a Class by Themselves—Their Electric Power Possibilities.

At one time waterfalls in large rivers were interesting only because of their scenic beauty, and their very existence was deplored because they obstructed navigation. But man has found a way to harness these mighty power producers and today they are of the greatest value to the commercial world because the millions of water horse power can be changed into electricity and transmitted for hundreds of miles to be used as a reliable substitute for our vanishing coal supply.

When it is remembered that two cubic feet of water, weighing 125 pounds, by falling a distance of only six feet will produce one horse power of energy, it is easy to comprehend that millions and millions of horse power are wasted every minute by the torrents of water tumbling over Niagara, the Victoria falls and the Iguassu river and many lesser falls throughout the world. This falling water is guided by steel and concrete penstocks to powerful water turbines which whirl great electric generators. The current produced in this way is easily transmitted for hundreds of miles over small copper wires to the cities and towns where it is used to haul the railroad trains to drive the great manufacturing plants and to give us light and heat.

Loyal as we all are to our country, we must admit that even the mighty torrent of Niagara ranks only third in size when compared to the waterfalls of the world. The largest of the earth's waterfalls, the Victoria falls of the Zambesi river in Rhodesia, are 380 feet high and more than a mile wide, and were discovered by Livingstone in 1855. The water power of these falls is estimated to be fully 35,000,000 horse power, two and one-half times that of Iguassu and five times that of Niagara.

South America possesses a waterfall which exceeds Niagara both in width and in height and is actually the second largest waterfall in the world. This little known waterfall is that of the Iguassu river, tributary of the Parana, and, like Niagara, is situated at the boundary of two states, each of which owns half of it. The total water power of the Iguassu fall, which is 213 feet high and nearly two miles wide, is estimated as about 14,000,000 horse power. This is approximately equal to the aggregate water power of all Scandinavia, which is rich in waterfalls, or about ten times the total water power of Germany.

There is no other waterfall in the world which is at all comparable in greatness with the Zambesi, Iguassu or the Niagara. Asia, notwithstanding its colossal mountain ranges, is comparatively poor in large waterfalls, which are found most abundantly in Africa and North America. The largest African streams especially are interrupted by many falls of considerable height. The Kougo has several high falls which owing to the great volume of the river, about sixteen times that of the Nile, may be counted among the most important sources of water power on earth. The Stanley falls, in the middle reach of the river, consist of seven successive falls, of a total height of 164 feet and a width of nearly 4,000 feet and offer an exceedingly rich source of power which probably will soon be exploited.

Still more important is the total water power which the Kougo develops in the non-navigable section extending from its mouth to Stanley pool. Here the river, confined in a channel only a few hundred yards wide and with a depth of water of nearly 300 feet, flows with a velocity of forty-eight feet a second, so that at every point of the stream 25,000 to 30,000 cubic meters or about 1,000,000 cubic feet of water are hurled along with irresistible force, while thirty-two rapids and waterfalls lower the level of the stream by 820 feet in a stretch of 170 miles.

The lower Nile, in Egypt, possesses a series of rapids, the celebrated cataracts of the Nile, but no waterfall in the strict sense of the word. True, waterfalls occur on the upper Nile, the most beautiful of them at the point where the stream issues from Lake Victoria Nyanza. This Ripon fall is only a few yards in height, but the volume of water is so great that it presents a magnificent spectacle.

Comparatively few persons know which is the highest waterfall in Europe. The most voluminous of European waterfalls, strictly so called, are the Rhine falls, at Schaffhausen, but the highest are the Rjukan falls of the Mann-Elf river, in the Norwegian province of Telemarken. The principal fall is 800 feet high, and the total height of the two chief falls with the intervening rapids amounts to 1,837 feet, while the average flow of water is fifty cubic meters, or 1,700 cubic feet a second. The Rjukan falls, with their total energy of 250,000 horse power, have been converted to industrial uses.—Electric News.

GAY OLD FASHIONS.

Dandies of Past Centuries Would Make Solomon Look Sad.

Compared with the gay apparel worn by the dandies of the past ages the youths of our time in the gayest of gay raiment make but a poor show.

The bishop of Ely in the fourteenth century had a change of raiment for every day in the year. The Earl of Northumberland boasted no less than sixty cloth of gold suits at this time.

In the time of Chaucer the men wore clothes as many colored as Joseph's coat, so that while one leg would be a blaze of crimson, the other would be tricked out in green, blue or yellow without any regard for harmony or contrast.

Even as late as the middle of the eighteenth century, a dandy would dress himself in a vivid green coat, a waistcoat of scarlet, yellow breeches and blue stockings.

And the gentleman of a few years later wore, among other vagaries, a coat of light green, with sleeves too small for the arms and buttons too big for the sleeves; a pair of fine Manchester breeches; clocked silk stockings; a club of hair behind larger than the head which carried it; a hat not larger than a sixpence.

It was a common thing in the early part of the eighteenth century for a man of fashion to spend several hours daily in the hands of his valet. Among the many operations which took up this time was "the starching of the beard and the proper perfuming of the garments, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, essences and pomatums.—London Standard.

One Good Way.

"My wife," said Mr. Clarke, "sent $2 in answer to an advertisement of a sure method of getting rid of superfluous fat."

"And what did she get for the money?" Was the information what she wanted?" asked Mr. Simmons.

"Well, she got a reply telling her to sell it to the soap man."—Harper's Monthly.

He Guessed Right.

"Ah, me," exclaimed Mrs. Nagget, "my shopping was most unsatisfactory today!"

"Huh!" grunted Nagget. "Trying to get something for nothing, I suppose."

"Yes, dear. I was after a birthday gift for you."—Philadelphia Press.

Quite a Change.

Howell—Rowell doesn't speak to his wife. Powell—And I can remember when he thought it was worth $1 to say a few words to her by long distance telephone.—Judge.

On the Way to Mecca. The bishop of London has published an account of his visit to the Sudan, which included a morning walk "in the very middle of native Africa." A native boy whom he saw standing near a well "was on his way to Mecca, having traveled already 2,000 or 3,000 miles, which had taken two or three years. His father had died on the way, and when I asked him how he would manage he said quietly, 'Allah will provide,' and it never entered his mind to ask me for anything. Five minutes afterward we came across three women—an old woman and two daughters. The eldest daughter was twenty-five. They were coming back from Mecca, but they had started off, she said, when she was a little girl about twelve."

How a Vessel is Pickled.

They "pickle" vessels today just as they did generations ago. Salt is believed to make the frames and planking immune to decay. A vessel measuring about fifty tons, say—the general dimensions of a little down east coaster or the average fishing schooner—requires about seven tons of salt to make the process successful. The salt is forced between the outer and inner skin of the hull and tamped hard. Sweet arising from temperature changes saturates the salt and forms brine, which permeates the structure with which it comes in contact.—Boston Herald.

Imaginary.

"Father," said the little boy, "every now and then I hear you talking about somebody who was old enough to know better."

"Yes, my boy."

"What age is that, father?"

"And the old gentleman after some thought replied: 'My son, there isn't any such thing. It's like the golden age—purely mythical.'"

Sunny People.

The world delights in sunny people. The old are hungry for love more than for bread. The air of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor on with a garment of praise it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

It is a fine thing to know when to let go. Many a man holds on too long. It is better to jump overboard than to go down with the sinking ship.
